Growth Driver Of The Spay And Neuter Market

An increase in pet adoption will propel the growth of the spay and neuter market going forward. Animal adoption is defined as acquiring animals through rescue groups instead of purchasing them from pet shops or breeders. Spaying and neutering are used by animals for protection against various diseases and medical conditions and from unwanted births. For instance, in 2021, according to Chewy, Inc., a US-based online retailer of pet food and other products, there were around 977,202 pets adopted in the US in 2021, which resulted in the highest adoption rate of 61% in the past six years.
