

Black Baywatch Cop Goes Psycho in New Thriller

Baywatch's Gregory Alan Williams chills audiences in "Reunion," an award-winning, gripping psychological thriller now streaming on AppleTV and Amazon Prime.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, USA, August 26, 2024

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Emmy® Award-winning actor Gregory Alan Williams captivates audiences in the heart-pounding psychological thriller, "Reunion". Williams, widely recognized for his role as beach cop Garner Ellerbee on the iconic series "Baywatch," steps into a dark and enigmatic character that leaves viewers on the edge of their seats. As anticipation builds for the upcoming Matthew Felker/ ABC News Studio produced docuseries, "After Baywatch: Moment in the Sun" (premiering Aug 28th on Hulu), fans can witness a strikingly different side of Williams in this intense new feature film.

Written, produced, and directed by Williams, the multi-award-winning film "Reunion" is now available for streaming on AppleTV and Amazon Prime at <https://www.reunion.movie/watchnow>.

"Reunion" features an exceptional cast, including Xamon Glasper (Being Mary Jane, Queen Rising) and T. Denise Johnson (Platinum, 5th Ward), with Williams portraying a fast-talking, scripture-touting father whose sinister actions threaten his family's very existence. The film follows Vanessa James, a newlywed who encounters a charming yet mysterious older stranger. As she delves deeper, she uncovers a chilling secret from her husband's past and confronts a malevolence beyond her darkest fears.

Williams' on-going 30-year career spans over 180 movies and television shows, including celebrated roles in "The Sopranos," "The West Wing," "Remember the Titans," and "Chicago Med." Currently, Williams co-stars in the HBO comedy "The Righteous Gemstones" alongside Danny McBride and John Goodman, and co-stars as Robert "Mac" McCready on the OWN/Netflix series
