This groundbreaking program has given underprivileged children in Kenya a unique opportunity to learn and play the ukulele, turning a seemingly unthinkable dream into reality. In just a few short months, these talented young musicians have recorded four singles, now available on iTunes, Spotify, and other online streaming services.

Camp Ohana Foundation's Children's Ukulele Orchestra is a beacon of joy and harmony, transcending boundaries and bringing the spirit of Aloha to the hearts of children in Kenya. Born from the belief that music has the power to transform lives, the program has discovered and nurtured talented youngsters in remote villages who had never before experienced the magic of musical instruments. Under the visionary guidance of Amos Balongo, founder of Camp Ohana Foundation and a passionate ukulele player, these children have become the pioneers of the First Children's Ukulele Orchestra in Africa.

Transforming Lives Through Music

The ukulele, with its sweet melodies, has become a medium through which these children express themselves, fostering creativity, unity, and a profound sense of accomplishment. For many of these children, the experience of holding a musical instrument for the first time has been life changing. They have found a new means of expression and connection, one that brings immense joy and a sense of achievement.
