We've been exploring various opportunities to expand our reach in the eastern portion of the U.S. over the past year and we're extremely excited to partner with Forest Hills...”

Mark Brewer, President

excited to partner with Forest Hills – a beautiful 75-acre cemetery located in Washington County, Virginia. Families reach out to us daily who love the idea of a memorial in nature, but who don't have a special place in mind to either have a tree memorial or bury or scatter a loved one's remains - they want a permanent site where they can do this. We're excited that Forest Hills now provides us with a great option to offer families.”

David Farris, General Manager of Forest Hills Memory Gardens, added, “We are excited to partner with Biolife and offer Living Urn tree memorials at our cemetery in Washington County, Virginia. When a family commits The Living Urn to the earth, they gain the legacy of a permanent final resting place and the assurance that it will enrich the natural habitat."

Brewer continues, "People are taking a fresh look at how they want to be memorialized after they pass. Over 75 million baby boomers will reach their average life expectancy over the next 25 years, and more than half of Americans who pass are now choosing cremation instead of burial. With Memory Forest and The Living Urn, along with Forest Hills and our many other Memory Forest locations nationwide, we're catering to this movement and providing an uplifting option for families. We're giving people the ability to give back after they pass and also create a living memorial at a place of their choosing – we think that's a beautiful thing."
