Growth Driver Of The Bancassurance Market

The increasing need for insurance is expected to propel the growth of the bancassurance market going forward. Insurance is a financial arrangement in which an individual or entity (the insured) pays premiums to an insurance company (the insurer) in exchange for protection against financial losses from specified risks. The growing need for insurance is driven by rising uncertainties and risks in modern life, including health issues, natural disasters, economic instability, and the growing value of personal and business assets. Bancassurance effectively addresses the increasing need for insurance by leveraging banks' extensive customer networks and trust to provide convenient access to tailored insurance products.
