Additionally, we are committed to supporting military veterans by offering specialized CDL training to help them transition into this vital sector," he added.

The latest addition in Fayetteville expands the TransTech footprint, complementing our existing CDL training centers in Charlotte, Raleigh-Durham, Gastonia, Newton, Winston-Salem, Asheville, Greensboro, and Greenville. This growth enhances our ability to serve more students in North Carolina, furthering our mission to provide top-tier training for aspiring truck drivers.

"At TransTech, we are dedicated to shaping the future of the transportation industry," stated Tyrel Sulzer, Co-CEO and COO of TransTech. "As the largest CDL trainer in North Carolina, our newest location in Fayetteville positions us to recruit, train, and graduate nearly 2,500 highly skilled and safety-conscious new professional truck drivers in the state this year. This latest center extends our reach into southeastern North Carolina, serving communities such as Fayetteville, Fort Liberty, Hope Mills, Spring Lake, Rockfish, and Steadman. We offer training for both Class A and Class B licenses and are pleased to announce that our initial classes have already been filled," he added.

The TransTech Fayetteville CDL Training Center will employ 10 people and is expected to train more than 350 new truck drivers annually.
