The performance will captivate audiences from September 5th to 8th, 2024, at The Pico Playhouse Los Angeles.

This play is not only a compelling piece of theatre but also a timely reminder of the importance of empathy, understanding, and the courage to challenge divisive ideologies.”

Matthew Nevin - Executive Director CIACLA

Directed by Tim Redmond and Caroline Morahan, A Night in November is a multi-award-winning, one-person play set in Northern Ireland in 1993. A Night in November centers on Kenneth McCallister, a bored protestant dole clerk who, after witnessing the hatred and bigotry of his own community, sets out on a voyage of discovery and redemption. Racism, sectarianism, belonging and soccer collide in this brilliant and piercingly funny play, demonstrating how tolerance is possible, even in the face of our most entrenched rivalries.

“We are incredibly proud to bring A Night in November back to Los Angeles. This play is not only a compelling piece of theatre but also a timely reminder of the importance of empathy, understanding, and the courage to challenge divisive ideologies. In today's world, the themes of the play resonate more than ever." - CIACLA's Executive Director, Matthew Nevin.

CIACLA is committed to promoting and celebrating Irish culture and heritage through contemporary and innovative programming. A Night in November is a prime example of the type of work that CIACLA aims to present—thought-provoking, socially relevant, and artistically excellent.
