Concerns with the Democratic Party's Approach:

Rising Crime Rates:

Hardie points out that the Democratic Party's policies have not sufficiently addressed the escalating crime rates across California. She argues that their approach lacks the necessary strategies and support for local law enforcement to effectively combat crime.

Economic Challenges:

The Democratic Party's handling of economic issues has been criticized for not adequately addressing the departure of businesses and the resultant job losses. Hardie believes that their policies have not created a conducive environment for economic growth or job creation.

Social Inequality:

The current Democratic policies have not effectively tackled growing social and economic inequalities, leaving many Californians struggling with limited access to essential services and opportunities.

"While the DNC focuses on national politics, my 'California Forward' plan is dedicated to addressing the immediate needs of our state," said Hardie. "We face critical issues such as rising crime rates and economic instability, and my plan offers practical solutions to enhance public safety, boost economic growth, and address social inequality. It's time to turn California red for a proactive approach that delivers real results for Californians that only a Republican Governor can provide."

Modern Technology: Invest in cutting-edge surveillance and predictive policing tools to improve crime prevention and response.
