Your Future. Our Promise.®

"In times of crisis, it is our collective responsibility to stand together and provide support to those in need," said Dr. Santhosh. "Saint Vincent and the Grenadines has always been a strong and resilient community, and it is our hope that this contribution will assist in the recovery and rebuilding efforts following Hurricane Beryl. At Saint James School of Medicine, we are not just committed to educating the next generation of healthcare professionals, but also to being a positive force within the communities we serve."

Hurricane Beryl caused significant damage across the Grenadine islands, displacing many residents and destroying homes and infrastructure, specifically in the southernmost islands. The donation from Saint James School of Medicine will be directed towards providing immediate relief and long-term recovery initiatives to rebuild the affected areas.

The school remains steadfast in its dedication to supporting its Caribbean partners and contributing to the welfare of the region.
