EINPresswire.com/ -- Since the initial rollout of their revolutionary software in May 2023 the team has added more features to enhance the workflow for filmmakers, production companies, educators, and industry creatives.

The Creator's Suite covers the entire production process, from development to distribution, and includes features for music used in films, commercials, and television, such as budgeting for music clearances. Imagine a system that saves time and money with intuitive software to streamline every detail of your film productions, special events, festivals, and content creation.

With backgrounds in filmmaking, producing, budget, and business management they saw a crucial need for productions to run smoothly. Most importantly by keeping up with the ever-changing needs of the industry, they continue to raise the bar with additional tools and resources for increased productivity and quantifiable results. As Co-Founder Stephanie Moore states, " We value our user's feedback and will continue to provide the best possible service for the creative community". For every project stage, it is an easy-to-use, all-in-one production management software that combines creative, accounting, collaboration, document management, production management (call sheets, scheduling, script breakdown), event planning logistics, and business processes so you can work faster and smarter.

In addition, the mobile app allows users to access their projects, and calendars, maintain their user profiles, receive/send notifications, maintain their expense reports, and more. These passionate and dedicated women are committed to making the Creator's Suite an industry standard for beginners, seasoned professionals, and educators.
