Soaring Demand for New Aircraft Drives Growth in the Aircraft Cable Market

The increasing demand for new aircraft production worldwide is a significant factor driving the growth of the aircraft cables market. Aircraft cables play a crucial role in establishing an aircraft’s electrical system and transmitting signals into electrical power for various types of aircraft, including commercial, military, and civil helicopters. The rising demand for aircraft leads to an increase in the demand for aircraft cables. For instance, in 2021, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) reported a 47% increase in the number of travelers compared to previous years, with expectations for continued growth. Airbus forecasts demand for 39,490 new passenger and freighter aircraft over the next 20 years, further fueling the aircraft cables market.
