market is expected to continue its growth trajectory, reaching $1.55 billion by 2028 at a CAGR of 10.2%. This anticipated growth is attributed to advancements in remote patient monitoring, the shift towards decentralized clinical trials, a rise in orphan drug development, and the increasing outsourcing of clinical trials, all underpinned by a regulatory emphasis on patient-centric approaches.

Increased Cardiovascular Disease Prevalence Fuels Growth

in Cardiac Safety Services Market

The rising prevalence of cardiovascular diseases is a major factor propelling the growth of the cardiac safety services market. Cardiovascular diseases, encompassing a wide range of disorders affecting the heart and blood vessels, such as coronary heart disease and peripheral arterial disease, are leading to an increased demand for cardiac safety services. These services play a crucial role in monitoring heart health, identifying factors contributing to cardiovascular disease, and taking preventative measures to reduce mortality. For instance, according to a March 2023 study published by Oxford University Press, over 200 million people were affected by peripheral artery diseases in 2020, with this number expected to rise by nearly 50% by 2045. Similarly, the Office for National Statistics in the UK reported an increase in deaths due to heart attacks from 19,440 in 2020 to 20,061 in 2021. These statistics highlight the growing need for cardiac safety services.
