Growth Driver Of The Ayurvedic Herbal Extract Market

The rising preference for natural products and plant-based products is expected to propel the growth of the ayurvedic herbal extract market going forward. Natural and plant-based products refer to goods derived from natural sources, particularly plants, that are minimally processed and free from synthetic additives or chemicals. The need for natural and plant-based products is increasing due to health consciousness, environmental concerns, the clean label movement, and dietary shifts towards vegetarian and vegan lifestyles. Natural and plant-based products help ayurvedic herbal extracts align with their principles of using pure, natural ingredients to promote health and wellness, enhancing their appeal and efficacy for consumers seeking holistic and traditional medicine solutions.
