Chief Technology Officer, Jack Wright said, "After intense analysis over the past 12 months we have built our proprietary system that auto tracks and adjusts all billing claims in accordance with our contracted rates with health insurers. This is paramount to solid accurate reimbursements for all services rendered. Manual reconciliation only leads to reduced payments, and we developed the Secure™ system to lock in automation and to maximize our Accounts Receivables."

Industry benchmarks typically report medical facilities collecting between 85% to 90% of total billed charges for services rendered, due to coding errors, claim denials, and inefficient billing practices. Secure™, with its advanced algorithms and integrated processes, has dramatically improved these outcomes for AIM, ensuring that insurance payers accurately compensate all billed services.

Ralph Lombardo, CEO of AIM, commented on the system's efficacy, "The Secure system is now a fundamental cornerstone of our financial performance, drastically reducing the common discrepancies and delays seen in traditional medical billing systems. By achieving a collection rate of over 97%, we not only safeguard our revenue streams but also reinforce our commitment to operational excellence and this will prove to be even more influential as we expand our footprint in the months ahead."
