LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, August 28, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- This book

This is a must-have book for your child, student, school, home school provider, Christian education provider, parent, caregiver, or library! Follow Environmental Eddie on TikTok!"

— A must have book for your child, school or library!

introduces the main character, Environmental Eddie, our protagonist and hero, who is 10 years old. While watching the evening news on television, Eddie listens to the weather reporter talk about how air pollution has increased over the years in his hometown.

Eddie immediately responds to the challenge, "I know I can help reduce air pollution!" However, Eddie must first acquire the knowledge, skills, and confidence, and to reduce air pollution. Fortunately, his school district has recently established an environmental academy.

This book covers elements of engineering, design, fantasy, science fiction, critical thinking, problem solving, Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS), Common Core Standards, and Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM).

Additionally, this book contains a puzzle, a coloring item, and workbook samples to enhance/reinforce learning. Also included is a sample donation letter, a template for how to start an environmental after-school program, a sample grant proposal, funding sources from the private sector and Federal government.

Welcome to Eddie's World of Learning and Education will teach your child skills in a fun and entertaining way! These skills can be applied to many situations and will last them a lifetime! This is a must-have book for your child, school, or library!

E. Ashley Chaney, PhD., Vice President of Marketing and Communications, said, "Our goal is for Environmental Eddie, with his proclamation to "Remember to Protect-it for Future Generations!"™, to become universally recognized as the worldwide icon for educational awareness and environmental protection. We plan to make Environmental Eddie the international ambassador for educating school children on the environment, critical thinking, and problem solving. We believe Environmental Eddie will be the next new sensation like "Paw Patrol" with his international appeal! We plan to accomplish this through books, Tik Tok, school visits, teacher training workshops, consulting, and social marketing."

"Environmental Eddie assists teachers, parents, and caregivers in teaching children how to solve air pollution through the use of STEM/STEAM supported critical thinking skills."

Mary Lou Nayler, PhD.,

Sacramento State University, Career/Tech Ed. Assistant Professor (Retired) and national Presidential STEM Taskforce.

This engaging book, ideal for elementary-aged children, combines an engrossing story with critical STEM concepts. It encourages young readers to think critically about air pollution and develop problem-solving skills. By introducing key air pollution terminology in an age-appropriate, reader-friendly manner, the book can motivate children to become environmental champions. Additionally, it can foster empathy for those affected by air pollution, making it an impactful resource for both education and social skills.

Mousumi De, PhD.,

Assistant Professor School of Education, Department of Teaching and Learning Education, University of Redlands, Redlands, CA.

Mr. Al Chaney is a talented author who loves and cares about the environment deeply. This shows in the words of his books and in his visits with children in school classrooms and libraries across the country. If you want your children to gain knowledge of how to protect their environment and to become problem solvers to meet challenges, this book would be a welcome addition to their reading library.
