The types of railroad workers that probably had routine exposure to asbestos include brakemen, locomotive mechanics, conductors, engineers, and track layers. Even the paint used on engines/locomotives and boxcars-tank cars contained asbestos prior to the early 1980s.

"If your husband or dad is a current or former railroad worker in Louisiana and he now has mesothelioma or asbestos exposure lung cancer, please call the Gori Law Firm at 866-532-2106 to discuss compensation. Compensation claims for people like this are slightly more complicated
