Below are some of the key findings:

- For centuries, astrology has played an important role in shaping how people think about their place in the world in non-western countries such as India and China. However, it has recently gained traction in the West, as people increasingly seek guidance from the stars through social media accounts. Astrology has entered the mainstream, permeating almost every aspect of popular culture, from daily horoscope apps and memes to influencer astrologists and articles about dress or self-care based on the star sign.
- Almost every industry has found a place for online platforms, and astrology is no different. The astrology industry is diverse and offers a wide range of services. For this fragmented market to reach its full potential, it needs to be consolidated and properly set up.
- Approximately 100,000 new astrologers enter the market each year. Numerology, palmistry, Tarot card reading, selling semi-precious stones, reading horoscopes, predicting stars and planets, and Vastu shastra are just a few of the many services offered by the vast field of astrology. The possibility for astrologers to bring them all together under one platform is enormous.
