Increase in Consumption of Processed Foods Fuels Market Expansion

The increase in processed food consumption is a major driver of the poultry processing equipment market. Processed foods, which are prepared through methods designed to preserve and ensure safety, are gaining popularity due to their convenience. For instance, the processed food industry in India is projected to reach half a trillion dollars by 2025, with household consumption expected to rise, making India a leading global consumer by 2030. This trend underscores the growing need for advanced poultry processing solutions.
