Bicycle Reflector Market Definition

A bicycle reflector is a safety device mounted on bicycles to improve visibility in low-light conditions or at night. It typically consists of reflective materials, often in the form of strips or panels, that reflect light back toward its source, such as headlights from vehicles, making the bicycle and its rider more visible to others on the road. Reflectors are essential for enhancing safety by alerting drivers and pedestrians to the presence of cyclists, thereby reducing the risk of accidents.
