During a stay at Heritance Aarah, guests can experience the local culture and traditions at the resort's Maldivian village museum. Visitors engage in local activities and experience the beautiful Maldivian culture of the past while also being educated on the events which helped shape the Maldivian lifestyle.

Heritance Aarah dedicates funds and resources to deliver sustainable tourism experiences and projects and since property opening in 2019, it successfully conducted sustainability education programs, reaching and educating more than 2,500 people including staff, guests, and the local community.

A key project is the Save the lungs, Save the ocean - Coral planting campaign. Heritance Aarah associates along with guests have together participated in the cultivation of soft and finger corals in coral regeneration cages. Guests who support the cause are rewarded with #TheTrueTraveller validation certificate.

Heritance Aarah is consistently embracing measures that minimize reliance on fossil fuels. Investment in 1125 solar panels, spanning an area of 1920 square meters, yields a significant kilowatt peak (KWP) output, effectively catering to the energy requirements of the resort. To bolster its water needs, the resort is active in rainwater harvesting, which assists with the cultivation of fresh fruit and vegetables at the Aarah Tharukaaree Dhandu (the resort's in-house vegetable garden)

Heritance Aarah also has a dedicated garden which produces long beans, papaya, radish and a variety of herbs along with many other vegetables. The harvest is assisted by the wet-garbage digester machine, which converts waste food and kitchen scraps into soil enhancements.
