achieved an extraordinary milestone, securing first place in the small company category of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette's 2024 Top Workplaces awards. This landmark achievement underscores the company's foundational commitment to creating an outstanding workplace. In addition to the company's top placement, CEO Jessica Minkus has been awarded the prestigious Leadership Award for the second time in three years, further solidifying her reputation as a leading force in Pittsburgh's business community.

The Top Workplaces awards are especially significant as they are based entirely on employee ranking and feedback, gathered through a third-party survey conducted by employee engagement technology partner Energage LLC. The confidential and anonymous survey measures critical aspects of the employee experience, including respect, support, empowerment, and growth—all of which are essential for organizational success.

For the last three years, Bookminders' outstanding performance has earned it top placement in every culture driver measured. This consistent excellence highlights the deep appreciation and trust employees have in the company's leadership, direction, work-life balance, and managerial support.

"Earning a Top Workplaces award is a badge of honor for companies, especially because it comes authentically from their employees," said Eric Rubino, Energage CEO. "That's something to be proud of. In today's market, leaders must ensure they're allowing employees to have a voice and be heard. That's paramount. Top Workplaces do this, and it pays dividends."

Reacting to this year's top placement and her Leadership Award, Jessica Minkus, CEO of Bookmindrs, remarked, "This recognition is a celebration of the trust we've built, the relationships we've nurtured, and the impact we've made—not only for employees, but also with our clients and partners. Thank you to my all-female leadership team. You set the bar high, showing that a workplace can provide purpose, connection, and fulfillment."

Minkus extended her appreciation to Bookmindrs' external team, saying, "Thank you to our hundreds of local nonprofits, small business clients, and partners. Your impact ripples through every corner of our communities. It is an honor to stand with you. We remain dedicated to being driven by excellence and distinguished by trust. These are not just our goals, but the way we have and will continue to do business every day."
