Growth Driver Of The Tumor Ablation Market

The growth of minimally invasive procedures is expected to propel the growth of the tumor ablation market going forward. Minimally invasive procedures are medical or surgical interventions that require only small incisions or no incisions at all. The demand for minimally invasive procedures is on the rise due to their reduced recovery times, lower risk of complications, and lower post-operative pain compared to traditional surgeries. Tumor ablation is utilized in minimally invasive procedures to destroy cancerous tissues using techniques such as radiofrequency, microwave, or cryoablation, minimizing damage to surrounding healthy tissue and reducing recovery times.
