Great things are happening at Immaculata. Our growth in enrollments across all student populations illustrates our broad appeal.”

Immaculata graduate and adult professional programs are offered in two fall terms, so enrollment numbers will not be finalized until late October. However, applications to Immaculata’s College of Graduate Studies and Research are up 10% compared to last fall. As of Sept. 5, the combined enrollment total of undergraduate and graduate students is 2,302 students, a 2% increase compared to early September 2023 enrollment totals.

In addition to recognizing overall increases in enrollments, Immaculata welcomed its most diverse freshman class in history this year with 38% of incoming students coming from historically underrepresented populations.

“Immaculata takes pride in creating a welcoming and inclusive place for all who choose to study here,” says Lynn S. Rothenhoefer, Immaculata director of diversity, equity, and inclusion. “Being an agent of change is a team effort. We are constantly learning so that we can ensure that we do better in creating a space where everyone feels empowered, heard and seen at IU through DEI-affiliated organizations, events and programming.”

With the overall increase in Immaculata’s student population, 559 students live on campus, which is the greatest number of residential students Immaculata has ever seen. Anticipating this enrollment growth for 2024-25, Immaculata boosted on-campus housing through a year-long expansion and renovation project beginning in 2023 that provided new dorm space for 27 additional students.

“Great things are happening at Immaculata,” stated Immaculata President Barbara Lettiere. “Our growth in enrollments across all student populations illustrates our broad appeal. Not only do these numbers prove that prospective college students and their parents see the true value of Immaculata, they show that transferring college students looking for a better fit are finding a true home here.”
