With enhanced gameplay, a deeper story, and the same physics-driven mechanics that made the original title a hit, Frenzy Extinction is not just a sequel—it’s the next chapter of the Frenzy universe.”

Brandon Egolf

Building a Franchise, Not Just a Sequel:

What sets Frenzy Extinction apart is its approach to building a franchise, not just a follow-up. Instead of simply adding to Frenzy VR, Frenzy Extinction builds on the foundation laid by its predecessor, and expands the world and mechanics into a more immersive and sustainable experience. It’s part of a broader strategy to create a series with depth, consistency, and an ever-growing universe, where each title enhances the others.

"Frenzy Extinction isn't just a sequel—it's a key part of growing the Frenzy universe," said Brandon Egolf, CEO of Clique Games. "People loved the mechanics so much, they went back to the original game just to experience it all over again. That's what we're going for—building something that players keep coming back to."

As the Frenzy virus mutates and the world collapses, Frenzy Extinction introduces new weapons, mechanics, maps, and multiplayer modes that push the survival genre further. "We've seen many sequels fail because they didn't evolve beyond the original, but Frenzy Extinction takes what players loved about Frenzy VR and layers on a whole new experience," Brandon added. "It's exciting to see the community so invested in both games."

A Free Playtest and Community Engagement:

As part of the launch, players who aren't ready to purchase yet can still get in on the action. The free playtest for Frenzy Extinction remains live even post-launch, giving players a chance to experience the game before committing. All they need to do is join the Frenzy Extinction Discord channel to receive a secret code for access.

Steve Ryland, CEO of Innoverse Games, shared his thoughts on the launch:

"Frenzy Extinction has been an incredible project, and launching it on Meta and Steam is a major milestone for us. Our team focused on faithfully expanding the universe we started with Frenzy VR. The community support has been incredible, and we're looking forward to seeing how players take on the new gameplay elements and challenges. Working with Clique Games for this launch has been fantastic. They understand how to work with studios and devs to get the most out of the game while still letting us stay true to our vision and design the game we want to build. Their focus on turning great games into lasting franchises is exactly what we needed for Frenzy Extinction."
