EINPresswire.com/ -- Get ready for an unforgettable fusion of soul, spirituality, and swing! Rabbi Steven Blane is set to electrify New York City once again with his signature High Holiday services— live at The Bitter End in the West Village and on zoom. These aren't your typical services; they're a dynamic, musical celebration where tradition meets jazz, and the result is pure magic.

“

There's something profoundly moving about blending music and prayer in legendary venue. We hope to offer soulful, inclusive services and bring people together through both tradition and creativity.”

Rabbi Steve Blane

The show kicks off with Rosh Hashanah at The Bitter End on Thursday, October 3rd at 10:30 AM, followed by Yom Kippur services on Saturday, October 12th at 10:30 AM. These services are a New York institution, known for selling out quickly and leaving audiences uplifted and inspired. Expect moving prayers, stunning jazz improvisations, and a communal vibe that makes everyone feel like family. Due to overwhelming demand from across the globe Sim Shalom offers a full slate of services virtually as well.

“There’s nothing like bringing these sacred holidays to life with the power of live jazz,” said Rabbi Blane. “The Bitter End has hosted legends, and we're bringing that same energy and spirit to our High Holiday services. It’s a spiritual journey like no other!”

Past attendees rave about the unique experience, calling it a "spiritual jazz session" that takes worship to the next level. With the creative synergy of Rabbi Blane’s powerful voice and his quartet’s masterful musicianship, each service becomes a spiritual concert you won’t want to miss.

Tickets are flying! Reserve a spot now for this one-of-a-kind High Holiday celebration.
