The summit focuses on driving impact investing for climate startups—especially those led by women in education, technology, and ESG—and is a must-attend for industry leaders passionate about accelerating sustainable business's future.

What to Expect: With top speakers and panels on the latest investment trends, carbon reform, climate action, and more, this summit promises to drive tomorrow's headlines in sustainable innovation and finance. The attendee list includes executive women, climate tech innovators, and impact investors, making it a key event for media covering the future of these industries.

Bhuva Shakti, Chief Sustainable Innovation Officer at Wallet Max, will deliver a dynamic keynote and participate in interactive panel discussions with leaders who are changing the global climate action landscape and financial innovation. Shakti's expert vision for economic inclusion and climate-fintech partnerships ensures that this event is not just another summit—it's a catalyst for impact.

"We're excited to unite leaders across sectors to drive solutions for a sustainable and inclusive future. The Emerald Summit offers a unique chance to collaborate, innovate, and take decisive action," - says Bhuva Shakti
