Following the success of her March 2024 release “Cyanide Jawbreaker,” “UR IN THE NOSEBLEEDS” represents Nelson’s first release with the support of DNT Entertainment, and was her first single to be distributed under The Orchard, a subsidiary of Sony Music Entertainment. Co-written by Nelson and produced by John Samuel Gerhart and mixed by Thomas Warren, the song resonates with anyone who has faced the emotional fallout from narcissistic, pack-mentality friends and is ready to reclaim their power.

Reflecting on the track, Nelson shares, “Karma is real and I always save her a seat at my table.” This sentiment perfectly encapsulates the anthem's empowering message and reinforces Nelson’s commitment to authenticity and resilience.

Courtney Paige Nelson’s career is on a remarkable trajectory, with notable achievements including a standout performance for 10,000 fans at HARD Music Festival and a Grammy consideration in 2023 for the EDM hit “See You Go” by DJ Moore Kismet featuring Nelson. Her recent Billboard Argentina interview for the song “COLD LIKE GEMINI” further highlights her growing influence in the industry. Additionally, Nelson won a coveted spot at the Durbuy Music Eurovision songwriting camp in Belgium with her unreleased track "TOO ME."

Since 2022, Nelson has landed over 40 editorial playlist placements, showcasing her expanding global reach. Her music, likened to the styles of Charli XCX, Bebe Rexha, Sophie Powers, Halsey, and Tove Lo, continues to captivate and inspire.
