“National Rubber Stamp Day is a lighthearted nod to something we take seriously,” said Neal Wright, owner of California Stamp Company. “It's not just about celebrating the invention of rubber stamps, but also recognizing how this simple tool has facilitated business and military operations for generations. We're proud to have been part of that history for 132 years. We are especially proud to have served the vast San Diego military community.” Specifically, California Stamp Company provided rubber stamps and pads to thousands of Navy sailors during WWII. These simple kits were used to stamp their names on uniforms. Stamps were simple and effective to keep their personal items identified.

To mark the occasion, California Stamp Company is offering special promotions on its wide range of products, including:

- Custom rubber stamps
- Self-inking stamps

Pre-inked stamps
