Ciserón is recognized as one of the most prominent voices in contemporary Latin American art. Born and raised in La Paz, Honduras, and currently based in Tegucigalpa, his work embodies a distinctive artistic language that fuses eclecticism with a refined minimalist aesthetic. His paintings, often described as bold and evocative, are characterized by vivid colors and a mastery of oil on canvas. Strongly influenced by Picasso, Ciserón’s compositions explore themes of identity and perception through the lens of cubism and abstraction, offering a fresh interpretation of these classic movements.

Over the years, Ciserón has established himself as a leading figure in the art world, gaining acclaim for his ability to transcend cultural and geographical boundaries. His work has been exhibited extensively across Latin America, including solo and group exhibitions in Guatemala, Nicaragua, and El Salvador. His influence also extends internationally, with notable shows in Miami, Washington, South Korea, and Taiwan. Each exhibition underscores his commitment to exploring the complexity of human experience and his pursuit of a universal visual language.

Ciserón’s art invites viewers to engage with a dynamic interplay of form, color, and emotion, making him a celebrated artist in both his homeland and abroad. His contributions continue to shape the landscape of contemporary art, earning him a place among the most respected and influential artists of his generation.
