Andy Blunt's Election 2024 Fall Forecast outlines winning scenarios for the White House and Congress.

Looking at the race for the White House, Andy notes, “Georgia remains the most important state on the 2024 national election map.” And for the control of Congress, Andy points to the open House seats as an indicator, “only nine of the 55 opens can be considered competitive.” And on the Senate side, “While Republicans appear to be in strong position to obtain the majority regardless of the presidential race outcome, it is far less certain that they can exceed 51 members.”

Georgia remains the most important state on the 2024 national election map.”
