The Top 30 Public Relations Agency honor, along with other recognition, has been awarded to PRA Public Relations strictly on the basis of excellence in performance, results and client satisfaction. The agency has not paid or registered for any award opportunities. Instead, the agency founder and team credits its commitment to three key pillars of public relations excellence for its success:

Three Key Pillars for Public Relations Success

The agency has built its reputation and track record of success on three key elements, according to Abrahamsson. These elements are critical to the top tier media results, support for acquisition, market expansion, partnerships and sales growth the PRA team has helped drive to success as the top tech agency of choice for Fortune 500 and emerging enterprises.

1. Durability, Visibility for Business Bottom Line

Public relations serves a very distinct role in marketing. Its messaging and results are long-lasting and created by an independent third party – the journalist. This means that any media result delivers extended SEO and digital benefit and isn't dependent on continuing budget. For growth enterprises, this long term impact is critical – and cost effective.

2. Understanding a Fast-Changing Media Landscape

The world of journalism and media is changing constantly. It is essential to be well-entrenched, expert in understanding and able to move swiftly to earn client results and navigate the needs of the media world. Delivering news and views a journalist can use is essential; tying that to the clients' business growth needs is the key to success.

3. Transparency and 24/7 Responsiveness

The media news cycle stops for no one, so being swift and proactive in working with the media is key. PR is never a "set it and forget it" automated campaign strategy. Being one step ahead is key. In support of this responsiveness is ruthless transparency. PRA Public Relations transparently shares the pricing for its most popular programs, and won't hesitate to tell a client what strategies will work best for them to get them the results they want.
