

Cutty Protection & Security: Leading the Charge in Private Security Solutions

Phoenix, AZ – Cutty Protection & Security, a private security firm in Phoenix, Arizona is pleased to share insights from an exclusive interview with its founder and owner, Rick Hanson. In this interview, Hanson reflects on the company's origins, its commitment to robust and personalized security measures, and the forward-thinking strategies that keep Cutty Protection & Security at the forefront of the industry.

A Firm Founded on Necessity and Expertise

Rick Hanson founded Cutty Protection & Security in 1997 after identifying a critical gap in the security industry. With two decades of experience as an international protection agent, Hanson was well-versed in safeguarding high-profile individuals and operations across the globe.

However, it was a local challenge that prompted him to start his security firm.

"In 1997, while working with a client in Arizona who owned a large manufacturing business, I was asked to conduct a security assessment after they experienced a series of thefts at their facility," Hanson explains. "Despite interviewing three different private security companies, I found none that met my standards for reliability and professionalism. When my client suggested I start my own firm, I took on the challenge, and that's how Cutty Protection & Security was born."

Since its founding, Cutty Protection & Security has remained dedicated to providing top-tier security services tailored to the specific needs of its clients. The company's mission is to deliver a combination of robust security measures and personalized solutions, ensuring comprehensive protection for its diverse clientele.

Addressing Complex Security Challenges

Cutty Protection & Security excels in addressing a wide range of security challenges, from special event security to executive protection security to fire watch, theft prevention and fraud detection. The firm's approach is rooted in providing customized solutions that effectively mitigate risks.

"Our clients often face unique security challenges, and each situation requires a tailored approach," says Hanson. "For example, we deploy trained personnel for fire watch at construction sites to ensure safety compliance. In cases of theft and fraud, we implement advanced surveillance systems and conduct thorough investigations. When dealing with disgruntled employees, we work closely with management to monitor potential issues and prevent escalation."

This commitment to personalized service has established Cutty Protection & Security as a trusted partner for businesses and individuals seeking reliable protection solutions.

Looking Ahead: The Future of Security

As the security industry continues to evolve, Cutty Protection & Security is proactively preparing for the changes on the horizon. Hanson anticipates significant advancements in technology, including AI-driven cameras and drones, which will enhance monitoring and response capabilities.

“We see the security industry becoming increasingly reliant on technology to address emerging threats,” Hanson notes. “To stay ahead, we are investing in cutting-edge technology and ensuring our team is fully trained in its use. Our goal is to provide our clients with the most advanced and reliable security solutions available.”

In addition to technological advancements, Cutty Protection & Security is exploring opportunities to expand its service areas and enhance its training programs. By remaining adaptable and forward-thinking, the company is well-positioned to meet the evolving needs of its clients and continue its legacy of excellence in the security industry.
