“Garden Studios has quickly established itself as a forward-thinking collaborative space that champions innovation, technology, and creativity across global production. Its future facing commitment to sustainable filmmaking and providing cutting-edge facilities is something I deeply admire. I look forward to contributing to the studio's continued growth and helping shape its future as a leader in both technology and talent development within the UK and beyond.”

As former Head of Amazon Studios in Europe, Georgia was instrumental in establishing and scaling operations across seven European production hubs, and commissioning a diverse slate of movies and television series for the UK, Germany, Italy, Spain, France, Netherlands, and Scandinavia. She played a pivotal role in bringing to life some of Prime Video’s most acclaimed global hits, including Clarkson’s Farm, 007 Road to a Million, The Devils Hour, The Rig, and All or Nothing. Her leadership extended to commissioning top-performing non-English language originals including Culpa Mia, Medellin, and Maxton Hall - The World Between Us. Prior to Amazon Studio, Georgia held senior leadership roles at Fremantle Media, BBC Worldwide and Shine International.

As a champion for industry-wide change, focusing on diversity and inclusion, skills development, and sustainability. Georgia was recently appointed voluntary Chair of the UK Skills Task Force by the British Film Institute (BFI) and convened major industry players to develop the ‘Sustainable Skills for the Future’ framework, aimed at driving growth and sustainability in the UK’s creative industries. This work is in addition to the creation of the National Film and Television School (NFTS) Prime Video Craft academy while in role at Amazon, and working with Jack Thorne to elevate awareness of disabled access across the TV industry through her role as Advisory Chair of the Edinburgh Television Festival.

Garden Studios, founded in February 2021, has rapidly grown to become a leader in sustainable and technologically advanced film and television production. Spanning more than 300,000 square feet, the studio boasts seven sound stages and a cutting-edge permanent virtual production stage.
