Canada's Top Growing Companies, launched in 2019, ranks Canadian companies on three-year revenue growth. Kernel earned its spot in this year's ranking with a remarkable growth rate of 487%.

Renowned for its ability to bridge the gap between technical expertise and business strategy, Kernel empowers private equity funds, corporate clients, and government entities to navigate complex transactions and cybersecurity challenges with confidence. Whether conducting rigorous due diligence, assessing and mitigating risks, implementing technical controls, or developing comprehensive integration roadmaps, Kernel Advisory ensures that clients have the information and support they need to make critical decisions quickly and effectively.

"This ranking is a significant milestone for the Kernel team and a testament to the value we bring to our clients," said Ira Goldstein, Founder of Kernel Advisory. "Rapid growth reflects the team's expertise in navigating complex cybersecurity challenges and the trust clients place in Kernel to deliver actionable outcomes with speed and precision."

"Our annual ranking of Canada's Top Growing Companies reflects the sector-spanning ingenuity of this country's entrepreneurs and corporate leaders," says Dawn Calleja, Editor of Report on Business magazine. "We believe telling their stories will inspire the next generation."

"The Globe and Mail congratulates this year's Canada's Top Growing Companies' winners for achieving exceptional growth and resilience in facing business challenges," says Andrew Saunders, CEO of The Globe and Mail. "It is a testament to dedication, strategic vision, and innovative drive.”
