“We are honored to sponsor such a special event. Supporting naloxone accessibility is at the core of our mission, and partnering with End Overdose allows us to further raise awareness about the life-saving potential of having naloxone readily available,” said Ross Seeley,

Managing Director of NaloxKit brand operations. "We believe that by working together with organizations like End Overdose, we can help ensure that more people are prepared to act quickly and effectively in overdose emergencies."

The End Overdose: Save a Life Fundraiser will feature a golf tournament, live music, a comedy set, and opportunities to learn about the importance of naloxone. Attendees will also have the chance to hear from advocates and leaders who are working tirelessly to address the opioid epidemic.

As part of its ongoing commitment to saving lives, NaloxKit will be present on both days of the event, offering attendees the chance to learn more about their Naloxone carry solutions and speak directly with the team. By sponsoring events like End Overdose, NaloxKit underscores its message that accessibility saves lives and that making naloxone readily available can have a profound impact on the fight against the opioid crisis.

NaloxKit offers a variety of personal carry and storage solutions for naloxone, including the NaloxKit Opioid Overdose Kit with Voice Rescue Instructions, designed for rapid response in emergency situations.
