

Dr. Bill Releford to Speak at National Black MBA Association, LA Chapter's 50th Anniversary Gala on October 10th

Celebrated physician, entrepreneur, and health equity advocate to address the impact of AI and technology in healthcare and Black entrepreneurship

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, October 3, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Dr. Bill Releford, a renowned physician and founder of Bloom Ranch and The Wound Pros, known lovingly as the Doctor and the Farmer, will deliver a keynote address at the National Black MBA Association (NBMBA) LA Chapter's 50th Anniversary Scholarship & Awards Gala on October 10, 2024. The gala, taking place at Hotel Indigo DTLA, will bring together leading Black business professionals to celebrate five decades of leadership, education, and economic empowerment.

Co-founding two businesses that merge healthcare innovation with community development, Dr. Releford has been an outspoken advocate for health equity, particularly in underserved communities. In his keynote, Dr. Releford will explore the role of emerging technologies, including AI, in transforming healthcare practices, improving patient outcomes, and expanding economic opportunities for Black entrepreneurs.

Bloom Ranch, a sponsor of the gala and one of Dr. Releford's ventures, focuses on sustainability and economic empowerment by fostering agricultural entrepreneurship. The Wound Pros, also one of Dr. Releford's ventures, is a leader in advanced wound care management and is revolutionizing how chronic wounds are treated in underserved populations.

"As AI continues to reshape industries, healthcare must not be left behind," said Dr. Bill Releford. "I'm honored to speak at this prestigious event, where we celebrate Black leadership and explore how technology can elevate not just business but also improve health outcomes in marginalized communities."
