Growth Driver Of The Self-Healing Grid Market

The increase in the increasing energy demand is expected to boost the growth of the self-healing grid market going forward. Energy demand refers to the total amount of energy required by a specific region, sector, community, or individual within a given period. The surge in energy demand poses challenges for conventional grid systems, and the growing need for resilient, disruption-minimizing, and operationally optimized power grids is driving the demand for self-healing grid solutions in tandem with broader trends in energy consumption and grid modernization.
