“

The addition of subscriptions to the iLok License Delivery App for Shopify, our customers can now offer more flexibility to their users with both one-time purchases and subscription models seamlessly.”

Andrew Kirk, Vice President of PACE,

PACE's Fusion Security Suite provides a swift and convenient method to safeguard software and intellectual property while the iLok Licensing platform can now directly integrate with Shopify to deliver your PACE-protected software licenses directly to iLok accounts. The iLok Licensing platform, with over 10 million registered users and now Shopify integration, makes marketing and selling your PACE-protected software easier. Installing the iLok License Delivery app for Shopify can effortlessly send licenses directly to the customer's iLok account, eliminating the need for activation codes or custom registration.

Andrew Kirk, Vice President of PACE, expressed the motivation behind the development, stating, "We recognized the necessity for software publishers to have a comprehensive solution for protecting, licensing, and distributing their products through established e-commerce platforms like Shopify. With the addition of subscription support to the PACE iLok License Delivery App for Shopify, our customers can now offer even more flexibility to their users by integrating both one-time purchases and subscription models seamlessly. This allows software publishers to maximize their market potential while continuing to benefit from the robust security and licensing solutions PACE provides."

Ernie Slenkovich, Vice President of Operations at MixWave, commended the PACE Shopify integration, saying, "Our experience with the iLok License Delivery app has been nothing short of seamless. We were graciously given the opportunity to be one of the first companies to onboard and test out the new system while being able to collaborate with PACE on improving it. It was a great experience."
