World Cord Blood Day 2024 - Free virtual medical conference and live local events globally

Easier to match than bone marrow, more than 60,000 cord blood transplants have been performed worldwide in the treatment of 80+ life-threatening diseases such as leukemia, sickle cell, thalassemia, lymphoma and more. In addition, we are now seeing that cord blood and placental tissue cells hold tremendous potential in innovative clinical trials focused on regenerative medicine and cellular therapies for cerebral palsy, stroke, HIV, spina bifida and more. As a result, cord blood is at the forefront of medicine with encouraging usage trends in Asia, as well as pioneering research and a focus on education in the US, UK and Canada.

Whether it's the launch of 'Cord Blood in the Classroom' or exciting news out of Japan, Canada, the UK or the US, there is something for everyone during World Cord Blood Day 2024!”

Charis Ober, Save the Cord Foundation (host of WCBD 2024)

World Cord Blood Day 2024 will provide the perfect opportunity for healthcare professionals, parents, students and government policy makers to learn about this vital medical resource. In addition to the many live events being held globally by WCBD Community Champions, a livestream will launch the official WCBD 2024 conference at 10am ET on November 15th. The full official virtual conference will be available to view in your time zone via Eventbrite (free, open to the public).

Attendees will discover the power cord blood in the fight against cancer with nearly 100% usage rates in Japan, as well as the latest advances in transplant and cellular therapies in the US, UK and Canada. Featured speakers for WCBD 2024 will include (in order of appearance):

- Exclusive launch of “Cord Blood in the Classroom” featuring Dr. Maegan Capitano (Indiana University School of Medicine), Charis Ober and Melanie Hall (Save the Cord Foundation), Barbara Torrey and Clarissa Monreal (Gilbert Public Schools, AZ)
- Dr. Joanne Kurtzberg (Duke University - Marcus Center for Cellular Cures - USA)
- Dr. Junya Kanda (Kyoto University Hospital – Japan)
- Dr. Roger Horton and Phoebe Groves (Anthony Nolan – United Kingdom)
- Dr. David Allan (The Ottawa Hospital Research Institute, Canadian Blood Services - Canada)
- Ariane Navarro (Cancer Survivor - Cord Blood Recipient)

World Cord Blood Day 2024 is hosted and organized by Save the Cord Foundation, a 501c3 non-profit.
