AI for Beginners provides learners with a comprehensive understanding of AI's history, key technologies like GPTs and neural networks, and ethical implications. It's designed to empower individuals to confidently engage in AI discussions and apply their knowledge in real-world settings.

Orion Ohev, Mentor with RealmIQ and course instructor, emphasized the importance of accessible AI education: "As AI transforms the future of work, it's crucial that individuals at all skill levels, and at all levels of an organization, understand how to harness its potential. This course is designed to demystify AI, empower learners to use it without fear, and set them up for success in this new era of rapid change that AI is creating."

Andrew Sedillo, Director of Microcredentials Instructional Design at NMSU Global, shared his excitement about the launch: "We believe AI literacy is essential for today's workforce, and this course is an excellent stepping stone for those curious about AI. Our goal at NMSU Global is to make high-quality, relevant education accessible to all, and AI for Beginners exemplifies that mission."

In addition to AI for Beginners, NMSU Global and RealmIQ are developing a series of advanced AI courses to help learners deepen their expertise and apply AI principles across industries. Enrollment for AI for Beginners is now open. The regular price for this course is $300, but for a limited time, learners can save $200 using the code XP27CT at checkout.
