The global gastrointestinal therapeutics market is expected to grow at 8.6% CAGR from 2024 to 2032. It is expected to reach above USD 48.6 billion by 2032 from USD 20.4 billion in 2024.

The primary drivers of the market's expansion are the rising incidence of gastrointestinal conditions such as ulcerative colitis, Crohn's disease, and IBS as well as the growing need for gastrointestinal (GI) medications. Additionally, the rise in pharmaceutical firms' R&D activities to create new GI medications and the rise in product approvals are anticipated to boost market expansion throughout the course of the projection year.

The incidence of gastrointestinal problems increases with age, with an estimated 20 million Americans suffering from chronic digestive ailments and over 62 million receiving a diagnosis each year, according to data from the GI Alliance in February 2021. Furthermore, the International Foundation for Gastrointestinal Disorders, Inc. (IFFGD) reports that the prevalence of GERD is 9–26% in Europe, 23% in South America, and 18–28% in North America. Therefore, in the upcoming years, the high frequency of gastrointestinal disorders is probably going to propel market expansion.
