Dr. Drew will explore Momcozy's innovative approach to breastfeeding support through in-depth conversations with expert guests, Dr. Staci Tanouye, MD, and Isabelle Trickey, a Momcozy user and first-time mom.

Expert Insights from Dr. Staci Tanouye, MD

As a board-certified OB/GYN with extensive experience in women's health, Dr. Staci Tanouye brings a wealth of knowledge to the conversation. She will share her professional insights on breastfeeding challenges, prenatal care, and postpartum health, emphasizing how Momcozy's Mobile Flow™ breast pump is transforming breastfeeding for new moms, offering an elevated, efficient, and comfortable experience. Having been featured on Good Morning America, NPR, and in top publications like The New York Times and Forbes, Dr. Staci is a trusted voice advocating for women's empowerment in understanding and caring for their bodies.

“Let's face it, pumping...tends to be cumbersome, uncomfortable, awkward, and so time-consuming. So it's so exciting to finally have an option that truly solves all of the worst things about pumping...whether it's taking care of baby or being able to multitask at work, it allows us to be as mobile as we need to be to keep living our busy mom lives." Dr. Staci said.

A Real Mom's Perspective with Isabelle Trickey

Joining the conversation is Isabelle Trickey, a first-time mom who recently welcomed her baby boy and is navigating the demands of breastfeeding while maintaining a full-time career. Isabelle's story of using the Mobile Flow™ breast pump to discretely pump at work highlights the pump's innovative features, practical benefits, and subtle yet efficient functions. She will share how the pump has given her the ability to multitask and maintain a healthy breastfeeding routine, even while working full-time.

"A big challenge for me as a mom is time restrictions. Moms are busy. Whether you work a full time job or are a stay at home mom there is always something that needs to get done," said Isabelle.

"I had an emergency C section which was a huge challenge just having a baby. Breastfeeding is also something that is really tough to navigate as a first time mom and I struggled with that. [With the Momcozy Mobile Flow Breast Pump] I was able to pump and provide milk for my son while I was in the hospital for my infection."
