The global mobile tracking software market is expected to grow at 19% CAGR from 2024 to 2032. It is expected to reach above USD 25.36 billion by 2032 from USD 5.3 billion in 2022. The market for mobile tracking software is a part of the broader software solutions sector, which is concerned with developing, distributing, and using applications that track and monitor the location of mobile devices as well as other relevant data. The growing recognition of the critical role location-based services play in a number of industries, such as logistics, fleet management, personal safety and security, and workforce optimization, is driving the market.

Additionally, services that go beyond simple location tracking are becoming more and more popular. Advanced Mobile Tracking Software now has geofencing capabilities that let customers create virtual boundaries and receive alerts when mobile devices enter or exit certain zones. With its proactive approach to location-based management, this trend is particularly helpful for applications like personnel monitoring, asset protection, and kid safety.
