When young people feel secure and valued in their homes and communities, they are more likely to thrive, achieve their goals, and contribute positively to society.”

Michael Kadisha

The day is not only about recognizing the capabilities of young people but also about actively working to instill confidence in them. This confidence lays the foundation for growth, helping youth develop into successful and capable adults. By offering the necessary support and resources, we can nurture their self-esteem and provide them with the tools needed for success.

“A key aspect of building youth confidence is creating a stable and supportive home environment,” said Michael Kadisha a principal of K3 Holdings. “When young people feel secure and valued in their homes and communities, they are more likely to thrive, achieve their goals, and contribute positively to society.”

A supportive environment extends beyond just physical spaces. Access to fundamental resources, such as internet connectivity, is crucial for young people's development in today's digital age. Reliable internet access enables students to keep up with their studies, explore their interests, and connect with peers and mentors. Additionally, a sense of safety within the community is vital. When young people feel safe, they are more willing to engage with others, explore new opportunities, and form meaningful relationships.

At K3 Holdings and Alpine LA Properties, the mission is to strengthen families and communities by providing safe, stable, comfortable, and affordable homes. The goal is to create environments that foster growth and development, serving as a launchpad for youth success. By ensuring that our properties are more than just places to live—offering security, support, and a sense of belonging—we aim to build self-esteem and confidence in the youth who reside in our communities.

"We believe that when children have access to a supportive and resourceful environment, they are better equipped to pursue their dreams and make positive contributions to society," said Nathan Kadisha, a K3 Principal. "Our commitment is to build communities where youth feel valued, supported, and confident."

The benefits of building confidence in young people extend far beyond their immediate lives. Youth with high self-esteem are more assertive in expressing their needs and opinions, confident in their decision-making abilities, and better equipped to form secure, honest relationships. This confidence also builds resilience, allowing them to face challenges, learn from setbacks, and grow into well-rounded adults.

National Youth Confidence Day is a powerful reminder of the collective impact we can have when we support young people. By providing safe and stable homes, ensuring access to essential resources, and offering encouragement, we all play a role in shaping the confidence and success of the next generation.

K3 Holdings and Alpine LA Properties are proud to contribute to this effort, working to build stronger communities that empower youth to reach their full potential. Together, we can create environments where every child feels secure, valued, and capable of achieving their dreams.
