After the ceremony, the delegation toured INCJ's office and innovation center to gain deeper insights into its work environment, core teams, and technical capabilities. The visit not only provided IYDF with a firsthand look at INCJ's global investment strength but also laid a strong foundation for efficient future collaboration.

Business Talks: Delving into Financing Collaboration Details

The next phase of the visit saw both parties engaging in formal discussions. Kenichi Takahashi presented the key structure of the financing partnership, including the allocation of funds, risk control mechanisms, and expected market returns. Michiko Sato then addressed IYDF's inquiries regarding the specifics of international short-term equity trading. This segment featured an in-depth exchange on key technical aspects of the collaboration.

The meeting also explored risk control mechanisms and compliance issues in the international market, ensuring that the flow and utilization of funds align with both parties' objectives. Transparent communication helped solidify the cooperation framework and foster mutual trust.

Signing Ceremony: Sealing the $514 Million Financing Deal

Following detailed discussions and final confirmations, INCJ Ltd. and IYDF officially signed a financing agreement valued at $514 million. This agreement signifies the start of closer cooperation through international short-term equity trading, aimed at driving innovation and growth in global equity investments. Masato Nakamura, Director of External Investments, signed on behalf of INCJ Ltd., while Joe Harris signed for IYDF.

Looking Ahead: Ushering in a New Era of Global Financing Cooperation

This collaboration strengthens INCJ Ltd.'s position in international capital markets while expanding its partnership network with leading global organizations. INCJ remains committed to driving global innovation and cooperation, leveraging its strong investment capabilities and forward-looking vision to offer strategic support and growth opportunities to its partners.
