About Brenda C. Nagle:

Former RN and Financial Advisor, Brenda, is a certified trained individual, who started teaching Infinite Possibilities, a New York Times Bestseller, written by Mike Dooley on the campus of the Adult Correctional Institution, Rhode Island. She soon realized it needed to be adapted for incarcerated and formerly incarcerated people.

Back in 2017, a spark ignited. Brenda saw people yearning to be heard, to have a chance to break free and build a better future. This led to Infinite Possibilities, a program brimming with tools for personal growth. But for it to reach its full potential, it needed a new home. So, with Mike's blessing, it was transformed into "Infinitely Free To Be", a cognitive behavioral therapy program designed specifically for those navigating reentry, which continues to be taught today in addition to three other programs. IFTB has been adapted to a correspondence (remote) course as well as a digital interactive program.

Additionally, Brenda created lessons-learned.org, a nonprofit community designed to positively affect recidivism.
