Buildremote Unveils Comprehensive Research on Fortune 500 Return-to-Office Policies
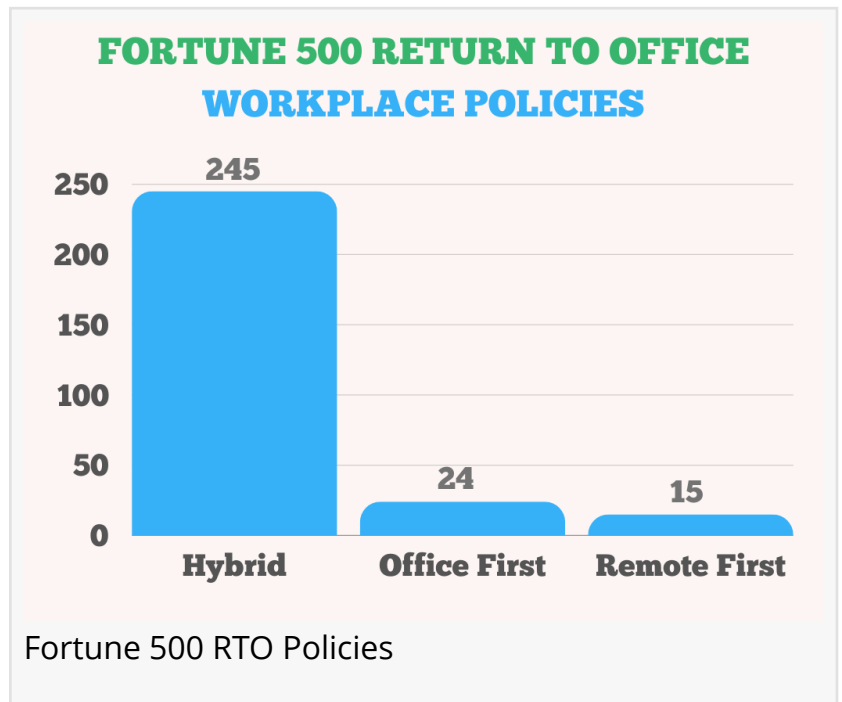

"New report shows 86% of Fortune 500 with public policies prefer hybrid work, with few requiring full office attendance."

CORONADO, CA, UNITED STATES, October 25, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Buildremote, a workplace research firm, has released a new report detailing the return-to-office (RTO) policies of the Fortune 500 companies. This extensive study offers unprecedented insights into how major corporations are navigating the post-pandemic work environment.

FORTUNE 500 RETURN TO OFFICE WORKPLACE POLICIES

Policy	Companies
Hybrid	245
Office First	24
Remote First	15

Fortune 500 RTO Policies

According to Buildremote's latest research, 284 of the Fortune 500 companies, representing 57% of this group, have publicly shared their workplace policies. These range from fully remote to hybrid to office-first, highlighting the evolving nature of work post-COVID-19.

Key findings from the report include:

- 86%, of companies with a declared policy are adopting a hybrid work schedule.

- Only 19 companies require employees to be in the office five days a week, underscoring a permanent shift towards more flexible working arrangements.

- 40 companies have embraced a fully remote policy, allowing employees to work from anywhere without mandatory office days.

- The most common policy among these companies is a three-day office requirement, adopted by 73 companies.

"This report benchmarks every large US company for RTO policies," said Henry O'Loughlin, President of Buildremote. "While there has been a temporary push for in-office work in the headlines, the data shows a permanent shift toward hybrid."

The complete report is available for review and download at Buildremote's RTO Report. This document serves as a crucial resource for business leaders, HR professionals, and policymakers aiming to understand and implement effective work policies in a rapidly changing environment.
