Escondido, California was incorporated as a city in 1888, and is located in the North County region of San Diego County, about 15 miles east of Oceanside, California. With a population of over 150,000 residents, Escondido has over 45,000 households with an average of more than 3 people per household. The city's location in a valley surrounded by hills and mountains can trap pollen and dust particles in the air, worsening allergies and respiratory issues. The region is also prone to wildfires, which can contain particulate matter, carbon monoxide, and other pollutants that may affect indoor air quality. During the rainy season, increased humidity can lead to mold growth in homes, particularly in areas with water damage or poor ventilation.
