

Maxiforce Dedicates New Training Facility and Expands Partnership with UNOH

LIMA, OH, UNITED STATES, November 1, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ --

Maxiforce, a global leader in diesel engine parts, is excited to announce the dedication of its new Maxiforce-branded training space at the University of Northwestern Ohio \(UNOH\). This facility, located on campus, enhances hands-on learning for students in Diesel Technology and Agricultural Equipment Technology programs.

The partnership between Maxiforce and UNOH began at the (PRI) show in Indianapolis, where Maxiforce invited members of the UNOH Diesel Club to join Maxiforce in their booth to participate in the show together. This experience gave the students on site exposure to the diesel aftermarket industry leading to potential career pathways.

“We’re proud to support the next generation of diesel technicians and engine builders,” said Paul Kelly, President/Owner Maxiforce. “This partnership helps students transition from the classroom to the workforce, addressing the industry’s need for skilled engine technicians.”

Maxiforce’s commitment to education reflects its 30 years of dedication to the diesel aftermarket industry.

About Maxiforce

Maxiforce provides aftermarket diesel engine parts for major brands like John Deere, Perkins, Caterpillar, Kubota and more, serving customers globally through 3 U.S. distribution centers covering the continental US in one to 2 days.
