NIEMOpen 'Reveals' Code-a-thon

Open call for Developers to Showcase their Talent at the NIEMOpen Reveal Summit

WASHINGTON, VA, UNITED STATES, November 5, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The NIEMOpen community has announced its inaugural NIEMOpen Reveal Summit, taking place from February 18-20, 2025, at the Press Club in Washington, DC. This summit will highlight significant opportunities for cost reduction and efficiency improvements in data exchanges, driven by the implementation of the NIEMOpen standardized framework.

NIEMOpen Reveal Summit 2025

One of the main highlights of the summit will be the release of NIEMOpen Version 6.0, which introduces the concept of a Common Model Format (CMF). CMF supports different representations of NIEM, including XML, JSON, RDF and more. This enhanced flexibility streamlines data exchange processes for a broader range of applications.

The event will reveal a new set of tools, training, and flexibility required by the next generation of NIEM users. Anyone interested in improving information sharing will want to be there"

Paul Wormeli

In addition to the summit, NIEMOpen is hosting a Code-a-thon, an event where coders and professionals collaborate on solving a problem or developing a software solution using NIEM. Code-a-thons are known for fostering creativity and innovation, resulting in websites, apps, or other solutions that address specific needs.

"The event will reveal a new set of tools, training, and flexibility required by the next generation of NIEM users. Anyone interested in improving information sharing will want to be there," said Paul Wormeli, NIEMOpen subcommittee co-chair for communications and outreach and long-time NIEM advocate.
